Architectural Design & Construction Engineering

Reg. No. 2006/041382/23

Sitsabo Project Managers cc has its origin a consultancy started in March 2006 by Rev. S. S. Dlamini, after working for Portal Partnership Architects in Parktown North as Architect, and the RSSC Group (Division of Tate & Lyle, UK) as a Construction Manager for 5 Years. Rev. Dlamini pioneered his work in South Africa during his study period in Pretoria in the early 1990s and after graduation, as he worked for Mike Payne Architects in Witbank and later RFB Architects in Auckland Park.

Between 2001 and 2005, Rev Dlamini went on to consolidate his project management expertise with the University of Bath in the UK, where he did the MSc in International Construction Management.

Rev Dlamini exercises unique influence in traditional architectural practices, construction engineering and project management thinking to contemporary innovative approaches and his work in practice bears testimony to his thinking in shaping theory and practice of these areas of his expertise. To take this a step further, he is currently doing his PhD in Construction Economics with the University of Reading in the UK, which places him as a disciplined beacon of hope for the global construction fraternity.

As a practising Architect, Construction Engineer and Project Manager of vision, Rev Dlamini has established himself as a reputable professional of creativity, conviction and tireless devotion to construction industry best practice development models. His academic and industry experiences, in South Africa and the UK present him as a unique asset for the state as he continues to contribute immensely towards construction industry best practice initiatives.
